Susquehanna Survey Sought

By JOHN KOENIG, JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D-Pa.) said today he hopes to arrange within two weeks a meeting of members of Congress from Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland to discuss plans for a survey of water resources and development potentialities of the Susquehanna River watershed.

The purpose, Flood said, is to form a unified group to secure final approval of the survey project.

Also invited to the session, Flood said, will be Army engineers.

The House Appropriations Committee this week included in its approval of a public works bill a $300,000 appropriation for initiating the Susquehanna River survey project.

Flood told a newsman this will be a continuing project with an anticipated cost of about $2 million or so over a six-year period until the comprehensive survey—the first ever made in the history of the Susquehanna River basin—is completed.

The survey will look into flood control, water pollution, reforestation, irrigation, recreation possibilities, hydroelectric power possibilities, navigation and canalization.

"This is the last remaining great river valley in the country waiting for such a survey to be done," Flood said.

He said plans for development of the Susquehanna River basin probably will follow closely those laid down for development of the Delaware River Basin. In the past year, Congress passed and President Kennedy signed legislation setting up a federal-state compact for development of the Delaware River basin water resources.

The Delaware valley basin, Flood said, encompasses some 12,500 square miles compared to the 27,500 square miles of the Susquehanna River basin. Consequently, he said, the half billion dollar development anticipated for the Delaware valley basin might preclude a $1 billion development for the Susquehanna basin.

Police Identify Red Hood Gang

YOUNGSVILLE—The "Red Hood" gang mystery was solved by local police officials, working in cooperation with the Warren County Sheriff's Dept., yesterday when three teenage youths admitted painting this community red during the early morning hours of July 9.

The gang members, two Youngsville youths aged 16 and 17, and a 16-year-old from Erie, admitted painting the initials "R.H." on various structures throughout the Borough of Youngsville.

On a tip originated by Rex Agnew of the local police department, the youths, all high school students, after a period of questioning yesterday afternoon, admitted the acts of vandalism.

They were turned over to juvenile authorities. Under the provisions of the law such acts usually result in being charged with malicious mischief.

The Erie youth was not contacted but information about his part in the night of vandalism was forwarded to the Erie Police Dept. In all, about 20 places, including private homes and business establishments, were hit by the gang.

According to police the paint, a bright red, was sprayed on signs, fences, lawn ornaments, in addition to the structures. Sheriff Donnell E. Allen Jr., who with Deputy Richard Hegerty assisted Police Chief E. Chappel and Agnew in yesterday's questioning, said complaints had been received from 16 victims.

Area Schools To Open Here September 5

Area public schools will open for the 1962-63 academic year Sept. 5, it has been announced by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Carl E. Whipple.

Classes will begin at Warren Area High School at 8:23 a. m.; at Beatty Junior High, at 8:20 a. m.; and at elementary schools, at 8:30 a. m.

All children who are or who will become six years of age before Dec. 1, 1962 may enter first grade on Sept. 5. Children already registered may enter first grade on Sept. 5. Children already registered may enter kindergarten. All must be accepted at East, Home, and McClintock. Only those children five years of age by Dec. 1, 1962 may enroll in kindergarten, Whipple said.

Pupils enrolled in area schools in June, 1962 are automatically enrolled for the 1962-63 school year. Those who have since moved into the district, entering Warren schools for the first time, or those who did not continue in school until June, 1962, should now register.

Pupils entering high school from other high schools must submit a copy of credits earned. In elementary grades, a copy of the last report card is necessary. A certificate of successful vaccination and a birth certificate also need to be presented.

All buildings will be open for enrollment Aug. 30 from 9 to 11 a. m. At Beatty and the high school principals will enroll new pupils as soon as possible. Such enrollment, it is pointed out, should not be later than the week of Aug. 27. Elementary pupils for any borough school may be registered at Jefferson during the same week, the week of Aug. 27.

Schirra To Make Only Six Orbits in Mission

Reds Hail Spacemen

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet capital donned carnival attire today for the arrival of the Soviet space twins, Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich. Soviet officials announced that their big parade will come Saturday.

The astronauts' families have already been brought to Moscow for the festival. The celebration got an added boost by the announcement that air force day, previously scheduled for Sunday, will be moved forward to Saturday. Both astronauts are air force pilots.

The astronauts themselves have been flown from Karaganda, their landing area in Kazakhstan about 1,500 miles southeast of Moscow, to a nearer undesignated base. There they continued to rest and to undergo examinations of the effects of weightlessness during their record orbital flights that kept them in space four and three days.

Both were reported feeling excellent and apparently sprucing up for the big reception. A brief shot on Moscow television showed Nikolayev lathered up, as a barber stood by to shave his growth of beard from four days in space. The bright weather that prevailed in Moscow during most of the astronauts' flights gave way Thursday night to rain, but preparations went ahead for their triumphal arrival. Red Square was full of cranes and construction machinery as platoons of workers threw up viewing stands and other trimmings that go with Moscow celebrations.

Tradition calls for the nation's newest heroes to be flown to Moscow in a big plane with a fighter escort. Premier Khrushchev will meet them at Moscow Airport and

Board Votes For One Unit Under Act 561

YOUNGSVILLE — In an impromptu poll, one out of eight Brokenstraw Valley School Directors, who attended a joint meeting with the Warren County School Board, last night at Youngsville High School, voted for a two-unit re-districting plan to meet requirements of controversial Act 561.

The meeting was the last of a series of six held by the county board to seek information to help them formulate a reorganization plan creating larger and fewer districts, which must be submitted to the State Council of Education by the end of 1962. The previous meeting was with county school administrators and with the other four area boards—Warren, Northern Area, Sheffield and Tidewater—respectively.

Off-the-cuff polling of the other boards revealed that all but Warren area favored a one-unit plan, if they must change.

County president, R. K. Cyphert, pointed out that the polls were not necessarily properly representative.

U.S. Ignores Reds, Continues Own Pace

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—A top American official says astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. will be limited to six orbits of the earth, no matter how well his Project Mercury flight goes.

"The mission is scheduled for recovery near Midway Island after six orbits, and that is the way it will be flown," D. Brainerd Holmes, director of manned space flight programs for the United States, said Thursday.

Thus, the fact that two Soviet cosmonauts zipped around the earth for three and four days will have no immediate effect on the U.S. program.

Holmes said Schirra, a Navy commander, will be launched on his space venture in the middle or at the end of September. His will be the only six-orbit mission, the space chief said. The next Mercury flight will be for 18 orbits and take a full day.

"I will commit to you that this nation will be second to none in the conquest of space," Holmes said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration official told his audience at Virginia Polytechnic Institute he was somewhat surprised at the reaction of many qualified people to the Soviet achievement.

"If we felt that this was surprising, then we were selling the Russians short," he said. "What they have done can be traced in every aspect to a large payload of considerable capacity and reliability, fired over and over again."

"They did it—something we could not do. Far from belittling the Russians, one should have expected it."

Holmes defended Mercury astronauts John J. Glenn Jr. and Malcolm Scott Carpenter against

Probers Ask Clarification Of Testimony

By EDWIN B. HAARINKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate stockpile probers today ask George M. Humphrey and a group of associates in a multimillion dollar government nickel deal to clarify conflicting testimony about "destruction of records."

Humphrey, secretary of the treasury from 1953 to 1957, flatly denied Thursday during five hours of vigorous testimony that any records important to the Senate inquiry were destroyed in offices of the M. A. Hanna Co. in Cleveland.

Humphrey was head of the Hanna mining complex when he joined the Eisenhower Cabinet. He is now honorary board chairman and director of the firm.

W. A. Marting, president of the Hanna Mining Co., backed this up late in the day. And Robert A. Shiff, head of Naremc Services Inc., a New York firm which supervised retention and destruction of all Hanna company records, said he was shocked by testimony that any records vital to the stockpile inquiry had been destroyed or were missing.

Under prodding of Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., chairman of the Stockpile Investigating subcommittee, Shiff conceded he had not been present in February and March — shortly after the Senate

President Declares the Country Is Entering a Decade of Crisis

PIERRE, S.D. (AP)—President Kennedy declared today the nation is entering a decade of crisis and "we cannot afford inefficiency and waste. We cannot afford endless debate and delay."

Standing beside South Dakota's vast Oahe Dam—the first stop in a weekend swing through the West—Kennedy pictured the country as in a race with a challenge.

And he urged in his prepared address that all parts of the economy pull together or else "the American people will be the losers."

Said Kennedy: "If the railroads prevent coal slurry pipelines from conveying the resources of our mines—if the mining interests prevent the use of nuclear energy for public and private transmission—if public and private power interests veto each other's progress, or if one region refuses to permit another to share in its abundance—then we shall be entering a decade of challenge and crisis with an inexcusable, vulnerable attitude of waste."

Kennedy noted that the Oahe Dam was the fifth of six great dams to control the mainstream of the Missouri River and to generate electrical power to nine states.

And he said, "The key to this century is power—power on the farm as well as the factory—power in the country as well as the city."

From here Kennedy flies further west, to Pueblo, Colo., and Merced, Calif., to look at more water projects and at least take a peek at the political picture.

The White House calls Kennedy's trip nonpolitical and the government is thus picking up the tab. But the President also has his eyes on the senatorial contests in South Dakota and Colorado and the race for governor between former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

In his speech here today Kennedy dropped a plug for old friend George McGovern, former food for peace director, saying he had served ably in the job.

Democrat McGovern is facing Republican Sen. Joe Bottom in South Dakota's Senate race.

The formal objective of Kennedy's weekend journeying back and forth across the continent was visits to the $345-million Oahe dam and power plant on the Missouri River just north of Pierre, the $170-million Arkansas-Fryingpan water project in Colorado, and a dynamite-powered ground breaking for the $511-million San Luis dam and canal system in California's San Joaquin Valley.

The President does his San Luis speaking and dynamite firing chores Saturday, at the dam site west of Los Banos.

He flies to Castle Air Force Base at Merced this afternoon, whisks by helicopter to beautiful Yosemite Valley to spend the night, and takes the chopper again in the morning to Los Banos.

The helicopter will backtrack to Fresno, where Kennedy will make a few remarks at the airport before boarding his jetliner and winging down to Los Angeles.

Aides said Kennedy had no official activity slated for Los Angeles—only some time with his sister, Patricia, and her husband, actor Peter Lawford, at their Santa Monica home.

Los Angeles is the home port of Nixon. And there probably isn't anyone Kennedy would rather see take another political licking than the man he barely kept out of the White House in 1960. Consequently, California has been tabbed for some outright political

2700 State Hospital Patients Receive Type 3 Sabin Dose

Type III Sabin Oral Polio Vaccine was administered this morning to about 2700 patients of the Warren State Hospital.

Vincent J. Marold, director of pharmacy at the state hospital, together with Dr. John Rees, physician in charge of medical services, conducted the emergency program to administer the vaccine to the patients at this time to coincide with the community campaign.

Marold said this morning that the program was for patients only, since hospital employees have the vaccine available through the county immunization program. He said the 2700 patients receiving Type III vaccine this morning is roughly the same number who received Type I a month ago, with some slight variation in figures due to patients discharged or on leave of absence and new admissions since the previous clinic. Surplus vaccine was being repackaged and refrozen this afternoon to be made available to those who did not get their serum today. The hospital will complete the three-shot series next month, again to coincide with the County Medical Society's vaccination project.

Meanwhile, county campaign officials redoubled their efforts to insure that everyone in the county would receive Type III Sabin vaccine this Sunday, Aug. 19, at one of the seven county clinic locations. Recent reports of the outbreak of several cases of poliomyelitis in Cambria County have underscored the urgency of the immunization campaign.

It was revealed Wednesday that four confirmed cases of the disease had occurred in the town of Patton, Cambria County, in recent weeks with one of the attacks claiming the life of a 9-year-old boy. Tests run by the state Health Department laboratory in Harrisburg indicated that three of the four cases were of the paralytic type.

Following the tests, the Health Department made immediate plans for mass distribution of the oral vaccine to the 11,000 residents of the area.

The safety and effectiveness of the live attenuated virus has been proved by a four-year testing program, inaugurated by the World Health Organization. More than 100 million people, largely children on four continents and on both sides of the iron curtain have received the oral vaccine in the Next time I hear a driver complaining that his car has depreciated in value I have a true story to tell him.

SOME OLD CARS NEVER DIE

Back in 1938 an outfit named the Winton Horseless Carriage Company made a two passenger car, by hand of course, that sold for $310 against the stiff sales resistance of the times. The first owner kept it until 1907 when he sold it to a dealer, who finally resold it, after much haggling for $175.

You can imagine the reluctance of the third buyer seven years later when he inquired if the asking price of $40 included a horse! Well, the poor old car really depreciated right clean through the bottom of the market in 1925 — 27 years after it was made — when its owner had to PAY a junk dealer $15 to haul away what was left of it.

Now comes the cheerful part. For 13 years it lay in the junkyard gathering dust, until one day an antique car collector bought it for $5. Just to show you what good care and reconditioning can do (as we've always said), this fellow worked on it replacing some parts and repairing others, for about ten years.

In 1948, on its fiftieth birthday, he had an antique auto that was winning prizes in competitions. He turned down $5,000 for it once, but finally sold it in 1953 for around $9,000. That owner has it still.

We haven't any 50-year-old Winton Horseless Carriages, but we have some fine young toddlers of two and three years with a great future ahead of them.

Hollywood Reporting

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Can lightning strike twice in the same vicinity? A starlet with the improbable name of Mimsy Farmer has high hopes that it could happen.

The story is this: Mimsy is a Hollywood High School girl who was discovered while munching a snack in a coffee shop near the campus.

Now don't go away. I know you've heard this song before. It's from an old familiar score that goes 'way back to a starlet with the then-improbable name of Lana Turner.

They say nothing changes in Hollywood, except the faces. So I went out to Warner Brothers to see if the ancient legend had truly been repeated.

Mimsy was on the set of "Spencer's Mountain," in which she appears with Henry Fonda, Maureen O'Hara, James MacArthur, Donald Crisp and Wally Cox. It was hard to tell whether she has the attributes of another Lana, since her hair was up in rollers. But the aspects visible checked out okay.

She is a petite blonde with green eyes and a pert mouth into which she sometimes puts a dainty foot. Such as when we were discussing with Maureen O'Hara the visit on the set of Gene Tierney.

"She's a real old-timer, huh?" said Mimsy, wide-eyed.

O'Hara collapsed in laughter admitting that she and Gene were contemporaries at 20th Century Fox—"and I'm not ashamed to say that I came to Hollywood 21 years ago."

That was four years before Mimsy was born.

Mimsy made an abashed apology and retired to a dressing room where she talked about her career thus far. Was the studio's publicity story true: That she was discovered eating a hamburger? "No," she replied. "I think I was having soup. But the rest of it is true. I had noticed this man looking at me in the eating place. When I went outside he came up and introduced himself as Byron Griffith and asked me if I'd like to get in the business."

"I said, 'what business?' and he said, 'the movie business.' I said yes, and he gave me his card and told me to have my parents call him if they were interested. They called him and I signed up with him as my agent. I went to his weekly dramatic classes for four months before he started showing me around at the studios."

A few television jobs gave her some seasoning. Producer-director Delmer Daves tested her for "Spencer's Mountain" and persuaded Warner to sign her. She's on a 90-day option at present. But Daves is talking about her for "Seventeenth Summer," and studio opinion is that Mimsy is on her way up.

Asks More Pay

ERIE—The superintendent of Erie schools has appealed to the school board to institute a more liberal starting salary and to prepare a teacher eligibility list sooner.

He claimed that many potentially good teachers slip from the district's grasp because they are not approached soon enough with job offers.

Citing the $5,000 salary base in Pittsburgh as compared with Erie's $4,000, he said "it's not difficult to see what can result from this."

Channel Chatter

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lloyd Bridges will be trying something different this season even if nobody else is. He's going to act on land, and dry.

After all those damp years of emoting in scuba gear in "Sea Hunt," Bridges soon will crawl ashore at CBS with an anthology series in which he will play both host and starring role each week.

The gimmick is that Bridges plays a writer who each week day-dreams himself into a new experience. A dusty pair of cavalry boots sends him back to a Civil War story, or a newspaper headline to a contemporary tale.

Bridges is a slow-spoken, conscientious fellow who likes to think things over carefully. Producer Aaron Spelling, close friend and partner in the enterprise, is an enthusiastic, fast-speaking man, bubbling with ideas. He also is one of the top men at Dick Powell's bustling Four Star productions.

"There just aren't any new ideas around in this business of ours," Spelling confessed frankly. "Everything is in the way you treat it."

The character as originally dreamed up by Spelling was to be called "Adam Fable," after the first man and after Spelling's belief that most men tend to live within their own fables.

"But then we changed it to Adam Shepherd," he said, "because too many people thought the title meant we would do a lot of Walter Mitty stories—the little man with heroic dreams. Shepherd sounded like a good name—the astronaut had just made his flight—so we chose that."

In a season of hour-long programs, the show runs only 30 minutes.

Be on hand for "IT" at 2:30 p. m. Saturday. Free parking at the Municipal Parking Lot, foot of Liberty Street.

Dear Abby . . .

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Am I foolish for being "jealous" of my husband's first wife? She is no longer living and I never knew her but, Abby, it's not easy to live in HER house, cook on HER stove, and sleep in HER bed. I haven't said anything to my husband about how I feel because I know he can't afford to replace everything all at once, but it's getting me down. Any advice to boost my spirits?

WIFE NUMBER TWO

DEAR WIFE: A little patience will go a long way. And your point of view needs changing. It's YOUR house now—and YOUR stove, YOUR bed, and more important, YOUR man. So if you love him, don't give him a problem he can't solve right now.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband. He says he isn't an alcoholic because he drinks only beer, but I have seen him drink 20 bottles at one sitting. He stops at a tavern on his way home from work every night and he comes in 4 to 5 hours late and loaded. Then he picks a fight with me because I refuse to heat up his dinner. I keep his dinner hot for an hour or so, but I don't think he deserves a hot meal when he comes home 4 or 5 hours late and drunk. Can a man become an alcoholic on beer alone? Your answer is important.

HEARTSICK READER

DEAR HEARTSICK: Yes, a man can be a beer alcoholic. Yours qualifies for A.A., but if he isn't ready to admit it and seek their help, you should investigate membership in Al-Anon. It's a non-profit (free) organization whose function is to teach non-alcoholics how to live with alcoholics. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is so superstitious it is getting my goat. If a black cat crosses the road in front of us, she makes me turn the car around and go the other way. She won't leave the house on Friday the 13th. You couldn't pay her to sit 13 at a table. How can I convince her that superstitions are a lot of baloney? Or am I the nutty one?

KNOCKING ON WOOD

DEAR KNOCKING: Superstition arises from ignorance. Hotfoot it over to the library and get a book on the origin of superstitions. (But don't step on a crack or you'll break your mother's back.)

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Youngster Starts 'Nursery Camp,' Mom Finds She's Doing the Work

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—My young daughter has made a premature entrance into the world of commerce. She is doing pretty well for a 12-year-old, too.

In a financial situation so disastrous that she didn't know where her next ice cream cone was coming from, Gay decided this summer it was essential to chase the wolf away from the door by her own efforts.

Enlisting the aid of two equally indigent friends, she started a nursery camp for youngsters in the neighborhood.

Entrance requirements for this establishment were made lenient—any candidate old enough to clutch 35 cents in his little fist was eligible.

The trio of would-be junior capitalists signed up a respectable number of wee ones, with grateful mothers waiting in line to farm their toddlers out for a couple of hours.

From the start the camp has been successful. They earn good money for their efforts. I give mine free.

No more sleeping late for me these days. I have to get up to get the counselor in our household up. The girls graciously agreed to mix the midmorning drink themselves after I balked at that job. But somehow I still fall heir to the task of cleaning up the trail of sugar and sticky spoons they always leave behind.

I'm not a licensed banker, but I am well-trained for the job, having been called on to make change for everything from a nickel to a $10 bill.

Since the camp is held closer to our dwelling than those of the other counselors it becomes the obvious place to supply the comforts of home to the kiddies away from home.

And somehow it's the most convenient storage spot for all the equipment—blankets dripping with grass and cockleburrs, mounds of broken crayons, torn books and lopsided piles of construction paper. I also furnish refrigerator space until refreshment time.

Maybe I won't have to put a stop to it after all, though. The thing may collapse of its own complications.

It seems that at the last camp period Jayne couldn't get there until 50 minutes late. Gay had to depart 15 minutes early for a doctor's appointment. Joan, however, was present for the whole two-hour session.

When last seen the three working girls were sitting on the floor with piles of coins in front of them, pencils and paper beside them. They were dividing the 120 minutes into segments of 10 minutes each, multiplying them by the number of periods each girl worked and coming up with three different answers. I'd offer to help but I do like to sleep late in the mornings.

All of Freeway Under Way Soon

HARRISBURG (AP)—Highways Secretary Park H. Martin expects the entire 179-mile Erie-Pittsburgh-West Virginia Freeway to be placed under construction within five years.

If construction expectations are met, Deputy Highways Secretary William R. Froelich said, the estimated $189-million freeway could be completed by 1969.

The department reports that approximately 20.14 miles of the super-highway currently are under construction. The status of the remaining segments are listed in this fashion: 71.5 miles ready for contract letting; 45.6 in final design; 41.2 in the preliminary engineering stage.

Your Forest Ranger

By L. E. STOTZ

There is little that is spectacular about the geology of the Allegheny National Forest. Climb any of the ten fire lookout towers and you will find yourself looking down upon a vast tree-covered plateau cut by relatively shallow valleys.

The Forest is a part of the Appalachian Basin which contains deposits of sedimentary rock that are from three to six miles deep, but seldom do these ancient marine deposits appear on the surface. Screened by a thin layer of soil that in turn is covered by grass, shrubs, and trees, the immense deposits of shale, sandstone, and conglomerate are as unfamiliar to most people as the mountains of the moon. Yet they tell a fascinating story of mountains uplifted, eroded away, and carried down to an inland sea; of early marine life in the primordial ooze; of the emergence of life on land; of lush tropical forests; and of the final uplift of the land mass.

There is nothing about the appearance of shale that would make a person want to collect samples of it, unless it contained fossils. It is a flimsy rock that often occurs in very thin layers. Where it is exposed in a road cut, and the new section of Route No. 59 overlooking the Allegheny Reservoir construction site is a fine example, it may weather rapidly to form little piles of debris at the base of the cut. Pick a piece out of one of the piles and examine it. You will find it to be dirty gray in color, about the thickness of cardboard, and so brittle that it can easily be snapped in two between the fingers.

While the shales were formed by the deposition of fine, silt-like sediments in an inland sea, the sandstones were the result of much larger particles of rock being carried out to sea. Both rock formations stem from the weathering of immense mountain ranges. The most interesting thing about the sandstones is their oil-bearing capacity. If you dropped a chunk of sandstone on your foot, it might be difficult to convince you that such a hard rock could be as porous as a sponge—and yet it is. It is this porosity that enables the oil sands to store such vast quantities of oil and gas.

Many fine stone houses and open fire places in this area are built of native sandstone. It is also used for headwalls around culverts on roads, and for ornamental retaining walls.

The conglomerates are the most colorful rock formation on the Allegheny National Forest. The gray sandstone matrix is filled with shiny, white quartz pebbles which may vary in size from that of a pea to a hen's egg.

While hiking over the Forest, the vacationist might be startled by the appearance of isolated, geometrically-shaped, conglomerate boulders as big as a good-sized house. These are encountered most often on the edges of valley rims and slopes. The quartz pebbles contained in them are sometimes so concentrated that there is little of the fine-grained sandstone to hold them in place. The vertical slopes of these exposed formations are subjected to erosion. Acid secreting lichens cling to them, and gnaw relentlessly at the hard rock. Wind, rain, and frost add to the destruction.

The egg-shaped quartz pebbles are more resistant to the action of weathering than the fine-grained sandstone matrix. As a result, they are left protruding like raisins in a soft pudding. Some of them can be dislodged with the fingers. Others have to be knocked out with a geologist's hammer. The large-sized specimens, when they occur in great numbers in the formation, indicate the presence at one time of fast-flowing mountain torrents capable of transporting large quantities of heavy material as it eroded from precipitous mountain slopes.

These monstrous, isolated chunks of conglomerate that seem more permanent and unyielding than the pyramids of Egypt are actually moving down the slope. The rate of movement, however, is fantastically slow. One of them, located on a ridge back of Sheffield, formed a rock shelter for Indians for centuries. Amateur archaeologists digging in the soil beneath the overhang found arrowheads and other implements at such a depth that the artifacts were labeled archaic by a museum staff member, and were estimated to be from 3,000 to 6,000 years old. Since the huge rock had not crept sufficient distance in that length of time to obliterate the site of human occupancy, it is evident that the slowness of the rate of movement down the valley slope is almost beyond comprehension.

The limited-access highway—which crossed eight Western Pennsylvania counties—is designed to provide a direct route between Lake Erie and the south.

It is classified as an Interstate Route (79), which means the federal government finances 90 per cent of the project and the state 10 per cent.

The purpose of such a project is best defined by Gov. Lawrence, who said as early as 1959:

"The long term benefit...will be economic growth, achieved by providing better transportation facilities for the businesses and the industries that are here now, and by providing a rational network of roads which will be an unmatched attraction to new enterprises."

The expressway can be divided into four basic segments:

—A 32-mile section of Interstate Route 79 which runs from the West Virginia line to a junction with I. R. 70 near Washington, Pa.

—The section of I. R. 70 which runs from the junction into Pittsburgh.

—A 13-mile bypass of Pittsburgh (I. R. 279) which runs from an intersection with Interstate 70 to an intersection with Interstate 79 north of Pittsburgh.

—A 17-mile section of Interstate 79 which runs from Pittsburgh north to Erie.

Things Are Moving

Two important meetings are scheduled for Monday night.

The Conewango Township Civic Improvement Association will meet at 8:30 p. m. in the North Warren community building. At 7:30 p. m., there will be a meeting at the Glade Fire Hall to form a Glade Township Taxpayers' League.

The first meeting is interesting for a number of reasons. We have been contacted by three members of this group, all of whom indicated that the essential purpose of the Conewango unit is to act as a watchdog on spending on taxation. It has been suggested by at least one that the group may change its name to the Conewango Township Taxpayers' League, which would be a little more definitive.

The fact that Glade Township property owners are also organizing is encouraging. The idea is spreading—the idea that the public has a right to exert pressure in the matter of taxation.

We advocated last week that taxpayer groups be formed to combat the tendency to spend and spend, on the local as well as the state and national level.

We would suggest that if each township in the county, plus Warren Borough, were to form a taxpayers' league, it would be a beneficial thing. Delegates from each league could then form a county group to consider tax and spending matters of county-wide scope.

Consider that we shall undoubtedly be saddled with a one or two-district county school setup. Who is to control such a group? Only a county-wide association of taxpayers' leagues.

What would have happened if, say, George Washington had told the Continental Congress, "Well, I'd like to be your general boys, but I don't want to stick my neck out." Most likely we would still be saluting the Union Jack and paying taxes and homage to Great Britain.

We must all, to paraphrase Benjamin Franklin, hang together, or we shall be financially hanged separately.

Who's to bell the cat? Volunteers, one pace forward. March!

How To Cut Taxes

How do you cut taxes? The Pittsburgh Press on Sunday had some answers to that. Here's what the Press editorial had to say:

TAX reduction without Government economies is a delusion. It would be accomplished only at the cost of inflation. Dollars saved on the tax cut, and more, would be handed right back through higher prices at the grocery.

And economy hardly is the word for what is going on in Washington. The Government spent $87,800,000,000 in the fiscal year which ended June 30. That was $6,200,000,000 more than the year before. Estimated spending for the current fiscal year is $94 billion dollars, up another $6,300,000,000.

At this rate of growth we will pass 100 billion dollars by 1964—more by billions than we spent at the peak of the second World War with 12 million in uniform and our industrial plants engaged in war production.

Some of this spending is by design. Part of it has just grown. For instance, President Kennedy 10 months ago, urged cabinet members and department heads to hold the number of Government employees "to the minimum consistent with getting the job done."

But the Government payroll at the end of the fiscal year was nearly 2,500,000—up 77,000 in a year. The payroll cost is 14 billion dollars. When it comes to saving a dollar, no one is tending the store.

Increased spending customarily is attributed to defense. That accounted for $3,700,000,000 of the extra spending last year. Even though there are frequent evidences of waste, this is no place to economize.

But no effort is made to balance these extraordinary costs by economies elsewhere. In fact, spending for civilian affairs actually increased $1,900,000,000 during the year. This increase would have been far larger, had Congress not balked at some Administration spending proposals.

Severe shock treatment will be necessary to bring Washington back from this never-never land where money grows on trees and there always is more where that came from. Nothing is more shocking to a politician than an election defeat.

The voters, and taxpayers, can do their bit for economy and tax cuts in the congressional elections come November. They can retire the congressmen, be they Democrat or Republican, who have tolerated this spending splurge.

More Talks with Tito

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth part of a series of exclusive interviews with Marshal Tito, held on occasion of Drew Pearson's visit to the Yugoslav leader.)

BRIONI, Yugoslavia — President Josip Broz Tito sat in a small porch swing when I interviewed him at his summer vacation lodge. In front of him was a small table with a microphone which recorded the interview. Tito speaks amazingly good English for a man who started studying it at 60 and my questions were given him in English without translation. He replied, however, in Serbo-croat which was then translated by Marian Osolnik, one of Tito's foreign affairs counselors.

Mrs. Tito, usually called Mrs. Broz, sat in on most of the interview together with Bogdan Cernobirja, the president's secretary general, and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Washington civic and educational leader. Toward the end of the interview, and after Tito had talked at some length on USA-USSR relations, Mrs. Meyer suggested that Tito, because of his old friendship with Russia and his knowledge of the United States, might act as mediator.

"I would not like to be a mediator," he replied, "but if and when I see Premier Khrushchev I will give him my opinions. This, of course, will be my own point of view. And I can give this to both Khrushchev and President Kennedy if I should have the opportunity to meet him."

"Whether my ideas will be received as useful is a different question," he continued. "I have previously told Premier Khrushchev both orally and in writing, how we view international problems, and I must say that in this respect I did not encounter any resistance. Premier Khrushchev appreciates opinions, and I have noticed that this is true of leading Americans as well."

When I asked President Tito what problems between the United States and Russia would be the easiest to solve, he replied:

"Disarmament." Then he added: "I do not mean the problem of disarmament as a whole. Frankly, I do not believe that in the present state, complete disarmament is possible. But we could take the first step by the cessation of all further arming."

"If at each time when Premier Khrushchev and President Kennedy meet," continued Tito, referring to his earlier proposal that they meet frequently, "they put all the problems that concern them on the table, they will not be able to achieve too much. But they should pick up one problem at a time and discuss it thoroughly."

Tito warned, however, that straightening out all the problems between the East and West was going to be a tough problem. "It will not be easy to find solutions," he said.

When I asked Tito if he could imagine the day when the United States and Soviet Russia would become good friends, he was much more optimistic.

"I believe that day will come about," he said. "Why not? There exists enormous possibilities for cooperation in the economic field and in general. Both countries are huge. The Soviet is in need of further substantial development and the United States has a big economic potential."

"Recently I expressed this thought: For what reason today should people wage war? Because of what questions? For what purpose should people be killed and catastrophe befall the world?"

"Hitler had the lunatic idea of ruling the world," continued the man who had fought five years of the most gruelling warfare. "But among the wise people, among those who feel the aspirations of mankind, I do not see the Reason D'être to wage war. We have passed by the period when wars were waged for economic problems. Throughout history we have waged wars—form the Medieval robbers to the march along the road for the conquest of colonies."

"But today the Asian and African countries are not colonies anymore. They constitute no ground for the big powers to quarrel over."

"Furthermore the development of production has reached such a high level in the developed countries that they do not need to conquer countries to gain productive goods. They have enough production themselves."

These Days

Ida and Eddie and Friendship

I sit among my maples on a sunny day, here in the Berkshires. I should perhaps be at Tanglewood to hear Montoux conduct Beethoven, but a laziness has come over me. The world of great affairs seems for the moment utterly meaningless. Somehow, my mind has been dwelling upon those who have recently left us for ever.

And most of all I think of Ida Cantor whom I have not seen for years. What children we were, Eddie and our bunch! We had so little of the material good of this Earth and we asked for little more than we had. Our ambitions were never to be rich, as men measure wealth. We did not seek security. We never talked about such things.

Eddie and I came from the Lower East Side, from a slum, overcrowded by immigrants, intellectuals and hard-working men and women from many countries, who had found their way to America, rarely to seek their fortunes but always to know freedom.

Eddie was always the happy boy. He had nothing at all. He lived with a grandmother who eked out a living under the direst circumstances. Nevertheless, we went to Lipsky's Cheder to study the Bible and Hebrew and to learn our prayers. Eddie could make us laugh. His eyes stuck out of his head. They popped. His teeth were—who has money for dentists when there is so little to eat?

Eddie and I and some other boys were picked up and asked if we wanted to go to a camp in the country. Sure, we wanted. But who had money? It would be free. Still and all, we need clean clothes and a toothbrush and tooth-paste and a ticket. It all came to about $5. And where does one get $5? Somehow, the money was solved. We went to the Educational Alliance Camp at Surprise Lake.

It was the first year that there was such a camp and we slept in tents and ate in a pavilion and we took turns washing the dishes. We ate such strange foods as oatmeal for breakfast and sardines for supper. But boy, it was good! And at night, we had a camp fire and we sang songs and told stories and every one was happy that he was alive.

Eddie feared that he would die of tuberculosis. In those days, it was called consumption and all the skinny kids got it and Eddie was skinnier than anybody.

Those of us who were at the camp together that year, organized the Camp Club and our club director was Bernard M. L. Ernst, from uptown. He was a wonderful man—a young law school student at Columbia University when we first met him. Although he was from uptown, he never made us feel small because we were from the Lower East Side. He gave us good advice and lots of friendship.

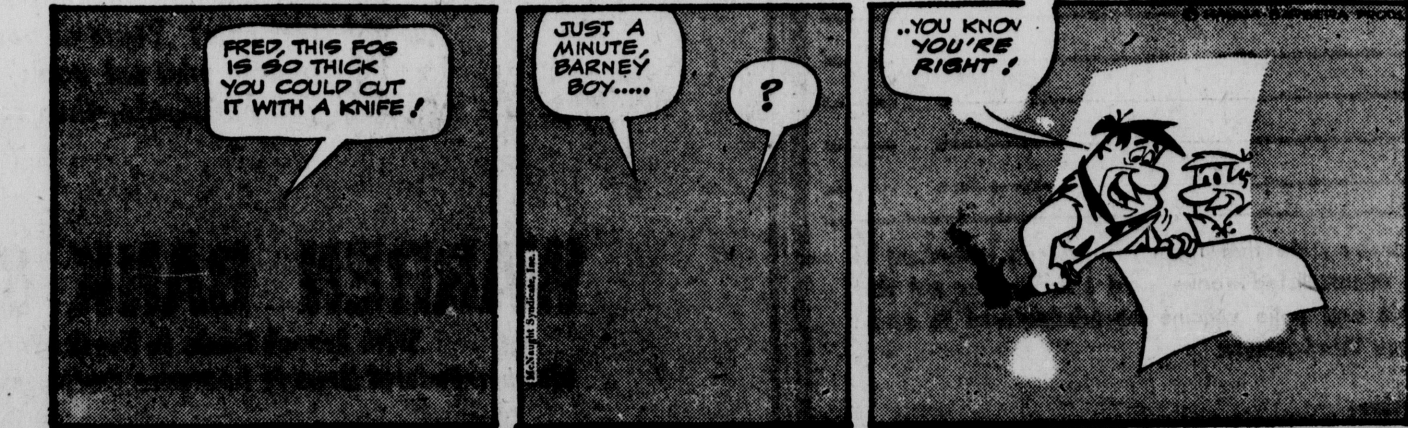

Eddie could sing and dance and he loved life and he had a girl. That girl was Ida who just died at 70. And Eddie never had any other girl. He became a great success in the theater. He played in Ziegfeld's Follies which was for him tops. For years, he had a show of his own on radio. He became a rich man and lived in Beverly Hills.

He never forgot the camp on Surprise Lake. With it he shared his good fortune. He financed its development so that other boys, many other boys, could enjoy the green grass of Summer, the fresh air of the country, a jump into a cold lake. Eddie's charities have been fabulous.

But no matter what success came to Eddie no matter what fame and what honors were showered upon him there was only Ida and his daughters. To Ida, he was a heroic creature; to him Ida was all wisdom. And so they both reached their seventieth year, neither of them as strong and nimble as they used to be. Two elderly people, comforting each other, after 60 years of friendship and intimacy. It can happen even in Hollywood. And then Ida fell asleep and did not awaken. Their lives had been good and unselfish and one can be thankful for that. Life cannot be eternal, but the memory of a great love can be everlasting. Life is ephemeral but friendship can be eternal. It remains in the memory of those who knew its beauty.

How To Keep Well

By DR. THEODORE Van DELLEN

Many people think of hay fever in terms of ragweed because the majority of victims are bothered by the pollen of this plant. But many persons are allergic to the pollen of trees and grasses. The difference lies in the timing. Ragweed usually pollinates at this time of the year in the Midwest whereas other plants do their love-making in the spring and early summer.

The hay fever problem varies in different parts of the country because climate determines when our 34 major offending trees, grasses, and weeds undergo pollination. There is no area in the nation where all of them grow all the time. Grasses and trees grow in some regions, for example, but not ragweed.

This is important to know when the physician is asked by a sneezy person to find the cause of the hay fever. Texas heads the list with 27 culprits. In Florida and the Gulf states there are only 16 major pollens and the season ends in November.

This means a Florida physician need not test his hay fever patient for all 34 pollens; he can concentrate on the prevalent 16. The individual may even be sensitive to something that does not grow in that state but it is obvious there is no need for concern because it is not playing a role.

Furthermore, when sneezing continues into December, the possibility of another type of allergen or a respiratory infection becomes more likely.

Most hay fever sufferers in this country can expect relief by September or October, when the pollination season is over. If there is a continuation of nasal congestion, sneezing, and red swollen eyelids—blame dust, the family cat or dog, or the common cold. A few months later, the cycle begins again with tree and grass pollen in the south, southwest, and southern California.

Mrs. L. S. writes: My husband, who weighed 190 pounds a few weeks ago, now weighs 170. He eats raw vegetables a lot and ransacks the refrigerator during the night. He has three meals a day besides but still feels weak. What should he do to regain this weight?

REPLY—We are so accustomed to thing of weight loss in terms of diet we forget a person can lose weight because of a physical or an emotional disorder. Ask your husband to see his physician unless he knows why he dropped 20 pounds.

R. K. writes: Our young grandson accidentally poked a lead pencil into his cheek several weeks ago. The black mark at the point of puncture remains. Can anything be done to eradicate it?

REPLY—Time will tell whether the pigment will remain in the skin as a tattoo. Removal is possible via surgery or a wire brush.

E. S. writes: Do the tablets for diabetes tend to cause anemia?

REPLY—This has been reported but is unusual. There are several antidiabetic tablets and another type should be tried if anemia of this origin occurs. The individual always can fall back on insulin, if necessary.

R. G. writes: Why do I develop pain over my eyes or on top of my head after drinking ice cold water?

REPLY—This type of headache is a form of referred pain caused by the stimulation of certain nerve endings in the roof of the mouth by the near freezing liquid.

LONDON — It's bad enough "They don't care how many when the Russians send one man up into space, but when they send two as they did this week end, it's almost intolerable."

At a time like this the Western world needs words of consolation. Here are some of the things you can say to make the Russian feat more bearable.

Choose one: "They really didn't do it. We don't know they did it. All we have to go on is their word."

"They do their space experiments in secret. We do ours out in the open for everyone to see."

"Even if they did do it, what does it prove? They can get men in space, but they don't even have enough housing for their people."

"We could do it too if we had slave labor."

"Our space ships are much more refined than theirs. Our equipment is more technical and we learn more when we go into space."

"Anyone can have a larger booster on a rocket. It's what's inside that counts."

"Their space experiments are for military purposes; ours are for peace."

"Eisenhower said we shouldn't worry about who gets to the moon first. We have much more important things to do, so why waste all that money?"

"Their astronauts got air sick, but you never heard anything about it."

"Sure, you hear about their successes, but what about their failures?"

"We know they were ready to do it all along. It comes as no surprise to us."

"It'll take Col. Glenn as an astronaut to Popovich any day."

"Even if they get to the moon first, we still have the lead on them when it comes to intercontinental missiles and Polaris submarines."

"Well, you can say one thing for them. They sure know how to exploit something for propaganda purposes."

"If they're so proud of their achievement, why don't they give us the details about it? Why all the mystery?"

"They may have the missile brains, but we have the missile brains."

Voice of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Marilyn Monroe's best friends think Peter Lawford's memory must have slipped a bit during his interviews after her death; they don't understand how he could have been very close to her and seen only the sunny side of her nature—never the brooding, frightened, uncertain side. They also have it figured out that Peter talked to her over the telephone after Joe DiMaggio Jr., not before, as Peter indicated when he blithely told the investigators that she sounded sleepy, but otherwise perfectly fine. One chum of Marilyn's said: "The reporters out in California missed a bet in accepting the identification of Eunice Murray as a 'housekeeper.' If she's just a plain ordinary housekeeper, I'm a circus acrobat. Why didn't the press ask her where she'd kept house before, and for whom? I think they'd find out she was a personal friend, an interior decorator, and that she had moved in at the request of one of Marilyn's doctors with instructions to stick close and not let Marilyn out of her sight. Marilyn was too miserable to be allowed to lock herself in a room with a lethal dose of nembutal."

The same friend added: "You can wager a small sum that Mrs. Murray, by now, has sold her 'exclusive' version of the tragedy to a national magazine. She certainly didn't tell much to the reporters."

"For instance, she told them 'Marilyn seemed disturbed after the last telephone call. . . . When she went to her bedroom she really was depressed. . . . But Mrs. Murray never explained what Marilyn did or said to convey the impression that she was disturbed and depressed. And if Marilyn was very disturbed and depressed at 8 p. m., why did Mrs. Murray wait until 3 a. m. before checking on her? If she was just a 'housekeeper,' why would she be checking on her employer at all, prowling around at three o'clock in the morning looking for a light under the door? She should have kept to her own quarters, not gone snooping and speculating."

"Of course, if she was an unofficial bodyguard to Marilyn, it was something else again."

"But that 'psychological inquest' they've been holding is big joke—although a sad one—when any good cop could ask a few questions and get the picture. What this case needs is facts, not theories, and the facts could be ascertained by asking the right questions of Mrs. Murray, Marilyn's doctors, and the coroner. Of course that 'last' person to talk to Marilyn on the phone would be a great help if he'd tell the truth, but I think we both know who it was and I think we both agree he won't tell the whole truth."

"So poor Marilyn's death is liable to remain a mystery, quite unnecessarily, because Hollywood pulled another of its hush-hush jobs. If this same sad thing had happened in Cincinnati, the facts would have been given out and it would have been all over in a few days. But this is California, and nobody has stopped talking about it because it wasn't handled in a clear-cut manner. In the land of Perry Mason, Marilyn's death has become The Case of the Prowling Housekeeper."

The filming of "Cleopatra," which took more than a year, pumped so much money into Rome that it actually boosted the economy of the city. Most Italians agree it's done more for their Eternal City than foreign aid. . . . Plans for a Harlem Jazz Festival are being resurrected. The bash probably will take place in September under the sponsorship of CORE.

Irving Wallace and MGM are on the verge of a hot feud because he doesn't like the way his novel, "The Prize," is being changed by Pan Berman, who will produce the screen version. Author Wallace isn't soothed by the fact that the book has been banned in Sweden, where they'd hoped to make the picture—so in all probability the location will have to be changed. . . . Capsule illustration of the "soft life" of movie star: Audrey Hepburn, working in France in "Paris When It Sizzles," rises at 7 in Fontainebleau to have breakfast with her two-year-old son, runs through her lines privately at 9, motors to Paris for a Givenchy wardrobe fitting followed by makeup at 11, then starts a gruelling day of shooting at noon. In Paris, studio hours run until 7:30 p. m. six days a week.

The National Council of Churches, in cooperation with NBC-TV's public affairs program department, will sponsor next month the first nationwide Bible teaching series ever attempted on network television.

The Rev. Dr. S. Franklin Mack, executive director of the Council's broadcasting and film commission, said a series of four Sunday programs will use maps, paintings, statues, and charts to explain and comment on the Book of Acts in an effort to "make the Scriptures relevant to today's world."

DR. Mack explained the series will feature the Rev. Edward W. Bauman of Washington, D. C., a university professor and Methodist minister "who has enjoyed great popularity as a teacher of a television Bible course in the Washington area for several years."

A professor of theology and Christian ethics at Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, Dr. Bauman is, also, associate professor of religion at the American University. A native of Ohio and graduate of De Pauw University, he holds Doctor of Philosophy and Bachelor of Sacred Theology degrees from Boston University.

SCHEDULED to begin Sept. 9, the series will continue through the month from 1:30 to 2 p. m. (EDT) on NBC-TV's regular Sunday religious program known as "Frontiers of Faith" when produced under Protestant sponsorship.

The program will coincide with the 10th anniversary of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible. Known as the RSV, this translation of the Old and New Testaments into contemporary English was 15 years in the making and was published by authorization of the National Council of Churches in Sept., 1952.

ENTITLED "When the Church Was Young," the series will be the first of several groups of broadcasts which will comprise a long-term series called "The Living Bible in Today's World."

The second group of lectures by Dr. Bauman, planned for network presentation early in 1963, will include 12 programs based on the Gospel of Luke.

PROGRAM titles for the first series of illustrated lectures are: Sept. 9, God's Good News; Sept. 16, The Essence of Christianity; Sept. 23, Life Together; Sept. 30, A Mighty Wind and Fire.

Asked why he chose to devote his first series of broadcasts to the early church, Dr. Bauman said: "In contemporary culture there is a pervasive mood of despair about man's present existence and his future destiny. The New Testament, which knows nothing of such despair, is the most joyful book ever written because it came from those who were absolutely certain that God acted decisively toward man in Jesus Christ to give meaning to life."

GRACE METHODIST—"Not by Bread Alone" will be Pastor Ralph S. Findley's sermon theme in the 11 a. m. service.

Richard Pratt will play "Priore" by Gamme and "Verbum Supernum." Ronald Zerbe will sing "Who Am I," a German tune, and "Lord Most Holy" by Franck.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN—Guest speaker for the Sunday services will be Thomas Davison of Olean, N. Y., a student at the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Philadelphia. Russell Thelin will sing "The Lord's Prayer" for the 11 a. m. service.

BETHANY LUTHERAN—"The Kindness of God Spurred" will be the lesson subject for the Sunday School period. For his morning message, Pastor Hook has chosen "An Old Testament Description of Christ," in the evening, "One Man With Faith."

Dean Layfield Memorial Race Will Feature Top Drivers

One of the largest fields of the year is expected to enter in the first annual Dean Layfield Memorial Trophy Race at State-line Speedway tomorrow night.

The race is in honor of the late Dean Layfield, one of the most popular drivers ever to race in this area.

Layfield was injured while racing at Perry Speedway, Perry, N. Y. on August 20, 1961. He died of injuries five days later when several operations failed.

Many of the top drivers of the Stateline, Eriez, and Busti Speedways are entered in the event, many of whom raced with Layfield for several years.

One of Dean's top competitors during his racing days, Emory Mahan, will not be entered in the race as a result of injuries sustained in the second heat of last week's races at Stateline. Mahan is expected to attend the races, however, being recently discharged from Warren General Hospital.

Probable favorites in the Memorial Trophy Race will be Eddie Kisko, current point leader at Stateline and winner of his past three feature races. Squirt Johns no doubt will be hot on the tail pipe of Kisko, as will Tom Dill, current runner-up in the Stateline point race. It could go to anyone of these.

One of Layfield's consistent competitors, Fred Knapp, also will be running in the event. Knapp is one of the most strategic and cool-headed drivers in this area, and said to be one of the smartest on the area ovals.

To retire the Dean Layfield Memorial Trophy, a driver must win two consecutive Memorial Trophy Races. The trophy is intended to be on a perpetual basis.

1,000 Fish Discovered Poisoned at Pine Creek

Water samples have been sent to the Department of Health in Harrisburg to determine the mysterious substance that caused the death of 1,000 fish, mostly trout, in a one-mile section of Pine Creek in nearby Enterprise, near Titusville.

Enterprise residents reported last Monday to Fish Warden Kenneth Corey that fish were strewn about a one mile section of Pine Creek and in the shallows.

Regional sanitary engineers from the district office in Meadville, and Corey, investigated the scene this week, and preliminary analysis revealed some mysterious substance.

Investigation also showed sufficient aeration in the stream, ruling out suffocation. Corey also ruled out the possibility of industrial pollution, because of the absence of industrial plants near the stream.

Two oil leases near the stream are not in operation, according to Corey.

When the results of the analysis will be available, Corey was not certain. He said it will depend on how busy the department laboratories are presently.

The fish mostly brown trout, ranged from six to twenty-six inches, Corey said. The remains will probably be removed by carrier eaters such as raccoons, birds, opossums, and crayfish.

Corey said that warnings were given to the families of two boys who were reported fishing in the area not to eat any fish caught in the creek.

The stream is reported to be back to normal by Corey.

However, further investigation will continue in that area for any possible leads on the source of the mysterious substance.

Records Fall In AAU Meet

By DICK CICCONE

CHICAGO (AP)—"I really didn't know I was going that fast, but I wanted to break the record," commented 16-year-old Carolyn House, whose 18:44.0 performance in the 1500-meter freestyle Thursday frosted a record breaking opening day of the National AAU Women's Outdoor Swimming Championships.

Murray Rose, Australia's 1956 and 1960 Olympic champion, cracked the listed American 400-meter freestyle record and a U.S. 200-meter freestyle relay team bettered an American mark set in 1935 in the men's international invitational.

Today's schedule promises another day of record-smashing as Robyn Johnson, 16, Arlington, Va., goes after the 100-meter freestyle title she won last year.

Jean Dellekamp of the Indianapolis Athletic Club returns to defend her 200-meter breaststroke title; Nina Harmer of Philadelphia will defend her 200-meter backstroke crown and Barbara McAllister shoots for Joel Lenzi's 3-meter diving crown.

In what may be the day's top race, Donna De Varona, the darling of the 1960 Olympic team, defends her world record in the 400-meter medley.

Miss House, in successfully defending her 1500-meter title, topped a world mark of 19:02.8 held by Sweden's Margareta Rylander, set in Upsala, Sweden in 1961.

The blonde Los Angeles lass was pushed to her record peak by teammate Sharon Finne-man, 16, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, who also bettered Miss House's listed American mark of 19:45.6.

Rose, the 23-year-old water marvel, splashed through the Portage Park pool in 4:16.1 erasing for the second time in a week the listed American mark of 4:17.5 by Japan's Tsuyoshi Yam-arka Rose was timed in 4:17.2 at last week's men's nationals. The world mark is 4:15.9 by Jon Kon-rads at Sydney, Australia in 1960.

In the 200-meter freestyle relay, the U.S. "A" team of Steve Clark, Santa Clara; Ray Padavon, Southern Illinois University; Dick McDonough, Villanova, and Steve Jackman, Minnesota, ripped the water in a remarkable 1:37.1, topping a 1:44.0 set by a U.S. team 27 years ago in Osaka, Japan.

Dean, Budd Out of Eagle Exhibition

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles fly to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, today for a National Football League exhibition game against the Chicago Bears Saturday night.

The Eagles Thursday held their last real tuneup for the exhibition with defensive back Irv Cross sparkling.

Rookie Frank Budd was not expected to make the trip after twisting his right ankle in practice.

Players who will be left behind include back Ted Dean, who went to Philadelphia for another X-ray of his injured left foot.

Moore Defends In Helsinki Against Maeki

HELSINKI (AP)—World Featherweight Champion Davey Moore of Columbus, Ohio, who has held his title for 3½ years, longer than any other present champion, puts it at stake here tonight against Finland's Olli Maeki.

The hard-hitting champion, with a record of 62 pro fights and 27 knockouts is a heavy favorite to win in his fifth defense of the crown. Maeki, 25, has had only ten pro fights, none, over 10 rounds. His record is 8-1-1.

The outdoor 15-rounder in Helsinki's Olympic Stadium will be the first world title match ever staged in Scandinavia. It is also the first time a Finn has had a shot at a world title.

Amos Alonzo Stagg—

Weary, But Courageous

By HAROLD V. STREETER
STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—Century-old Amos Alonzo Stagg's strength is fading. But he still has all his courage.

The man who for 70 years coached thousands of college boys emerged from hospital confinement Thursday night to appear at one of the 12 parties held across the nation in honor of his 100th birthday Thursday.

Stagg, who was born before football was played in the United States, started coaching it in 1890, and quit reluctantly at 98, two years ago, is but a shadow of himself. Cataracts over both eyes have nearly blinded him. His once proudly erect body is stooped. His mind is alert at times; again it wanders.

But he knew, from the influx of old friends and former players, from the telegrams read to him by his 87-year-old wife — from President Kennedy, from Herbert Hoover, from Richard M. Nixon — that big things were stirring.

Nurses at his convalescent hospital, where he has been confined since February, had feared even the short trip downtown to the Civic Auditorium by car might be too much for him.

Shortly after 8 o'clock there was a hush, a gasp and then a bedlam of handclapping and cheers among the 370 birthday celebrants, including California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Through a doorway Stagg came, between his beloved Stella, his wife for 68 years, and his son, Paul, athletic director at University of the Pacific. His step was slow. His frail body trembled. His face was drawn and solemn. But he walked on his own. No help, until he reached the step to the speaker's platform.

Dazed but determined, Stagg sat down while the crowd broke into a happy birthday song and a three-foot high cake was wheeled in, 100 lighted candles glittering.

While praise was heaped upon him he sat as if scarcely aware of what was going on. There were anxious, whispered conferences with his wife and son. They wanted him to go back to the hospital but Brig. Gen. Lawrence Whiting, another of his bygone Chicago Maroon gridiron greats was speaking. Stagg insisted on waiting.

When Whiting sat down, eager hands lifted up Stagg and led him gently to a wheelchair. The crowd watched in admiring awe as the courageous old battler was wheeled away.

He had spent about 30 minutes in the hall.

Today, back in the hospital, Stella, his faithful twice-daily visitor, begins reading piecemeal to him the some 1,000 letters and telegrams sent him from all over the world. One from Gov. Richard Hughes of New Jersey lauded the native of West Orange, N.J., as "one of the most highly respected and dearly beloved figures of all times."

Football Doubleheader In Cleveland Saturday

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Welcome home Milt Plum and the Cleveland Browns.

That was a popular slogan for the past four years at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium when the Browns made their first appearance each season. Now it best symbolizes professional football's first doubleheader in history for it will take two games at one field if the Browns' fans want to watch their favorite whipping boy.

Plum is now quarterback of the Detroit Lions, who play the Dallas Cowboys in the opener of the twin-bill Saturday night. Then his old teammates take over in the second game of the National Football League exhibition card against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The unique doubleheader is the highlight of a solid weekend of NFL exhibitions. Three are scheduled in the American Football League. In the NFL, the Los Angeles Rams meet the Minnesota Vikings in Portland, Ore., the champion Green Bay Packers play the St. Louis Cards in Jacksonville, Fla., and the Chicago Bears and Philadelphia Eagles meet in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

On Sunday, the New York Giants begin a two-game West Coast tour in San Francisco against the 49ers.

Baltimore won its second straight game Thursday night, whipping the Redskins 34-14 in Washington.

Tracy Off Injury List

WEST LIBERTY, W. Va. (AP)—Pittsburgh Steeler halfback Tom (The Bomb) Tracy is out of the hospital and back in action.

The squad, Tracy included, head for Cleveland today for the novel National Football League exhibition doubleheader Sunday.

Tracy was released from Wheeling Hospital Thursday after a two-day stay for what the club said apparently was heat prostration or exhaustion. He ran through drills later in the day.

It was feared at first that Tracy had appendicitis.

Three Steelers will miss the game. End Harlon Hill has a pulled muscle; linebacker John Reger is out with a knee injury; and linebacker Bob Schmitz is recovering from a concussion.

Pittsburgh meets Cleveland in the nightcap of the doublebill. Dallas and Detroit tangle in the opener.

complaints voiced at the conference here that, as military test pilots primarily, their scientific findings had been disappointingly thin.

The complaints were coupled with a suggestion that NASA train scientists as future astronauts. "Glenn and Carpenter didn't just sit there and stew about whether their retro-rockets would get them back to earth," Holmes said. "They went about their missions with keen interest, and made good observations."

Holmes said it would be impossible to include scientists among the first Apollo crews, unless they were qualified to act as pilots.

Probers Ask Clarification Of Testimony

inquiry got under way — when some Hanna records were destroyed.

Symington read earlier testimony by Walter H. Henson, head of a team of government auditors working on the stockpile probe, that checks and invoices had disappeared and Henson had been unable to find them or get a satisfactory explanation.

Both Humphrey and Marting have testified that copies of all such destroyed documents were available and could be seen by the investigators.

Symington finally ruled that all the Hanna officials as well as subcommittee investigators should get a chance to clear up the details.

Earlier, Humphrey emphatically disputed testimony that the Hanna company made more than $34-million profits from the stockpile nickel contracts, signed in early 1953 just before he became secretary of the Treasury in the Eisenhower administration.

Humphrey insisted that Hanna profits, after taxes, amounted to $7.5 million over a seven-year period and he said a return of "25 or 30 per cent" for a raw material company was not excessive.

The Cleveland industrialist said both Hanna and the government benefitted from the nickel project.

On this trip, though, Gov. Brown has a prominent role among the Kennedy newcomers and in the San Luis ground-breaking ceremonies, and this isn't calculated to do him harm in what is regarded widely as the top political bout of 1962. A Brown victory would just about mean the end of Nixon as a major political figure — and as a potential challenger of Kennedy again in 1964.

Wednesday's schedule calls for buses in the Brokenstraw Valley School System to be inspected at Pittsfield. Tidoute's inspection date will be announced later. Due to construction at the school site school is not expected to open until Oct. 1 in Tidoute.

James Loding, who works at the desk in the local police station, receives many unusual requests during any given week, but when two youngsters yesterday asked him how they could buy the island located near the Fifth Ave. bridge in the Conewango Creek, it topped them all.

The youngsters, aged about 10 years, had been camping on the island for several days. Considering it the best thing that ever happened to them, they decided that ownership was the next step. Upon being informed that the island could not be purchased, they dejectedly left the station, Loding said.

Monday's Rotary speaker will be Dave Reed, a member of the local club and assistant administrator at Warren General Hospital.

The Rotary Cog this week carries a novel device for attracting more correspondence. In the middle of it is a large boxed-in area in which this wording appears: "This space reserved for the news item you did not give me last Monday!" Ah, the problems of an editor.

Now that Warren has a "boardwalk" — on the Hickory St. bridge — one local wag has suggested that we stage our own Miss America pageant. Could be.

Work presently underway at the Keystone Service station on Third Ave., in connection with the recently installed storm sewer on Hickory St.

A spokesman for the company said the station will be connected to the storm sewer.

The next Bloodmobile visit here will be Wednesday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. at the Chapter House. Donors are urgently needed to fill the 125-quart quota.

ride with them into the city where thousands will jam Red Square to cheer them. Khrushchev, who has been vacationing on the Black Sea, has already promised to meet the space twins in Moscow.

Diplomatic quarters predicted that Khrushchev may use the space triumph to make some dramatic political gesture in the near future. There has been no official hint of what it might be. However, there is speculation Khrushchev may announce his intention of going to New York for the U.N. General Assembly meeting, which starts in September, with the expectation of meeting President Kennedy without the burdensome formality of preparing a four-power summit conference.

Khrushchev's aim, diplomatic quarters indicate, would be to try to get broad public support for the Soviet version of how to disarm and of how to settle the German and Berlin problems.

Board Votes For One Unit

tive, since at none of the meetings was a majority of the directors present.

The eight of Brokenstraw's 17 directors who attended last night's meeting were: President, Ernest Oviatt, Mrs. R. Frew, Mrs. Francis Briggs, Noyd Chappell, Nobel Clark, Clifford Sample, Robert Spencer and Marlin Schnell. Also present were County Superintendent John Mallory, Brokenstraw Supervising Principal, J. J. Sherwood and Youngsville High School Principal, Felix Matthews. With Mr. Cyphert from the county board were Francis Rogers, Leonard Pearson and Al Burgett.

The county superintendent outlined the history and significance of Act 561.

Asked what advantages could be expected from re-organization, Mallory said it was suggested that they might include: better administration, with fewer district offices; better curricula, with more supervisors in special fields of education being able to reach more schools; more equal taxation. Financially there might be advantages in centralized purchasing and cuts in transportation costs through the elimination of overlapping routes. He said the reimbursement picture was not yet very clear.

He added that there was some quarrel in some quarters with the ideas that larger districts would necessarily result in better education. He said the results, if Warren County should become one large district in the 9500 class, might not be comparable with those in a city district of 9500.

In reply to a question of the necessity for re-organization, he said it was mandatory upon the county to submit a plan by the end of this year. If the plan proved unacceptable in Harrisburg, the State Council of Education would help work one out. If no satisfactory scheme were developed, by the end of 1963, the Department of Public Instruction would provide one and it would be mandatory.

"That does not sound very democratic to me" observed one director.

Mallory pointed out that in 1845 the state legislature had made it mandatory for every township, borough and city to become a school district and "if they could do it then, they can do it now."

In expressing their views, almost all of the directors said they did not feel the Act was clear enough on specific points and that they did not have enough information on which to base an opinion. Mallory said that there would be two more sessions of the legislature before Act 561 becomes effective (in July 1965) and it would probably be subject to some amendments.

Cyfert said he thought "things are beginning to jell now perhaps" but that it would probably be necessary to have a joint meeting of all school directors in the county before a final re-organization plan could be developed.

Asked if he could give an indication of which way the county board was "leaning" at the present time — in favor of a one unit or a two-unit plan, he replied "not yet."

In a brief regular business meeting after the joint meeting the county board approved bills totaling $60.52 for special education accounts and approved transportation contracts to the following: Von Nichols, $7.50 per day; F. A. Loomis, $3, Samuel Montore, $6; Mrs. Eric Lawson, $5.50.

quehanna basin survey was granted with the provision that all authorized river projects in the area be reanalyzed with a view to their consistency with the overall basin development programs.

The committee refused to approve a proposed $100,000 fund for final planning of the Tioga-Hammond reservoir in the Mansfield, Pa., area. The committee said that due to local area protests about the feasibility of this project compared to a possible series of small dams and due to the project's being a part of the overall Susquehanna development program it could well be held up for further consideration.

2700 Patients Receive Type 3 Sabin

world-wide tests, since perfection of the vaccine in 1957. Results of these comprehensive tests have proven that Sabin Oral Polio vaccine is both safe and effective. A four-year testing program, inaugurated by the World Health Organization. More than 100 million people, largely children on four continents and on both sides of the iron curtain have received the oral vaccine in the world-wide tests. Since perfection of the vaccine in 1957. Results of these comprehensive tests have proven that Sabin Oral Polio vaccine is both safe and effective.

This Sunday, Aug. 19, is the second and last opportunity for county residents to avail themselves of Type III vaccine. Some 15,000 to 16,000 people are expected to attend the seven clinics in the county. Last Sunday 16,953 doses of Type III were given, an increase of 1,092 over the figure for the first Sunday in July when Type I was given. The two-day total for Type I was about 31,000, and it is anticipated that comparable figures for the two-day total of Type III will show an increase of about 2,000, or a total of approximately 33,000 for the two Sundays of Type III.

The increase has been attributed in part to the establishment of a new clinic last Sunday at Columbus to accommodate the residents of the northwest part of the county. Other probable factors are the return of many people who were on vacation in July, as well as the efficient operation of the several clinics, which has enabled people to receive their vaccine without undue delay or confusion at the clinic sites.

Mrs. Evadna Endersen, publicity and public relations chairman for the campaign, also attributed the gratifying response of the public to many hours of hard work by the publicity committee and to the high degree of cooperation of newspapers and radio stations.

People planning to attend a clinic this Sunday should remember to clip and fill out in advance the registration form printed in The Times-Mirror.

Type III Sabin Oral Polio Vaccine will be administered this Sunday, Aug. 19, from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. at the following clinic locations:

Warren—Beaty Cafeteria
Russell—Fire Hall
Youngsville—Grange Hall
Sheffield—Township Building
Tidoute—Grange Hall
Sugar Grove—School Cafeteria
Columbus—Fire Hall.

County School Projects Total Over $5 Million

tised again and reopened July 27, 1961.

Contracts for the elementary wing went to Carl Swanson & Son of Bradford, general contractor, $295,540; David N. Brown & Son of Bradford, heating and ventilation, $46,275, and plumbing, $36,271; C. Beckley of Warren, electricity, $27,000.

Contractors for the high school include Beyer Construction Co. of Warren, general contractor, $140,605; David N. Brown & Son of Bradford, heating, ventilation and plumbing, $54,105; Bevevino Electric Co. of Warren, electricity, $18,653.

The total cost of the new construction, including site cost, fixtures, equipment, fees, and miscellaneous items is $540,371.70 for the elementary school and $269,914.27 for the high school, bringing the grand total for Sheffield to $810,285.97.

The project, as are other school construction projects currently under way, is financed under the state school authority which holds the bond issue and rents the new structure to the school district. It is felt, County Superintendent of Schools John Mallory Jr. said, that the entire amount financed will not be needed and that what is left over will be used to redeem bonds, as will be the case in all other instances.

In Youngsville there are three projects—alterations and an addition to the high school; a new elementary building in Youngsville proper, after which the present elementary school will be converted to junior high facilities; and a new elementary building at Pittsfield, following which the Grand Valley, Garland and present Pittsfield buildings will be closed. All are part of the Brokenstraw school district.

Construction on the addition and alterations to the high school was started at the close of the past school year. Four hundred and fifty days will be required to complete construction but the major portion will be finished in September, 1963.

The Youngsville and Pittsfield elementary buildings are also slated for completion in 1963. Julian Naetzer of Jamestown is the architect for all three projects.

THE Youngsville elementary building, with a rated capacity of 528 students based on projected enrollments through 1967, will have 13 standard classrooms, a special education room and two kindergarten rooms. The Pittsfield building, based on an enrollment of 396, will have ten classrooms, a special education room and one kindergarten room.

Contractors include the following: Alger Rau of Cleveland, general contractor for the high school $646,000; M. C. Strickland of Oil City, general contractor for the two elementary buildings, $767,594; Sans Corp. of Jamestown, heating and ventilation for the of Sharpsville for the two elementary buildings, $122,000; William T. Spaeder, plumbing for all three projects, $147,220; Bevevino Electric Co., electricity for all three projects, $202,887.

Total cost, including site cost, equipment, fees, etc. will be $1,209,000 for the high school; $669,900 for the Youngsville elementary building; and $672,000 for the Pittsfield elementary building, bringing the grand total for the Brokenstraw district to $2,550,000.

THREE new elementary schools have been planned for Northern Area. Two—at Sugar Grove and Lander—are already under construction. The third, at Russell, will be started this fall soon after bids are opened in October.

These three will take the place of existing buildings which will be sold when the new units are completed and probably be torn down.

The new school at Sugar Grove will cost $620,785.35; the one at Lander, $495,173.29. Hunter, Campbell and Ray of Altoona is the architect for all three new buildings.

The general contractor for both buildings now under construction is Swanson and Sons of Bradford. The contract price is $357,601 for Sugar Grove and $234,560 for Lander.

North Plumbing and Heating of Warren holds the contract for Sugar Grove, $46,360 for Lander. Electricity will be installed by Northwest Electric of Erie—$34,094 for Sugar Grove, $28,243 for Lander.

SANS Corp. of Jamestown has the $49,595 contract for plumbing in the Sugar Grove building. At Lander the plumbing will be installed by Stefanak for $40,442. Alterations and an addition to the elementary school at Scandia are also in work, with Naetzer of Jamestown as the architect.

The bond issue authorized was $125,000. Contracts are held by the following: Peterson and Sturzenbecker of Jamestown, general contractor, $64,161; Sharp Heating and Plumbing Co. of Jamestown, plumbing, $11,958; Sans of Jamestown, heating and ventilating, $16,491; C. Beckley of Warren, electricity, $7,450.

ALTERATIONS and an addition to Irvinedale School have already been completed at a cost of some $320,000.

Ten years ago, County Superintendent of Schools John Mallory Jr. said, the pressing need was for new high schools. The country was reorganized around high school attendance so that each new high school would become a central point for high school girls and boys in a wide area. "Now," he said, "we are bringing elementary school facilities up to date. By 1963 Warren County will have some of the finest schools in the country."

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's not normal.

An American election campaign begins soon, for seats in Congress. And there's not an explosion or a deep, distracting emotional disturbance in sight.

History says this can't last. There has been some surging or disquieting situation before each election going all the way back to 1948 when President Truman defeated Thomas E. Dewey.

In the midst of the presidential campaign that year the United States was trying to break the Berlin blockade — not knowing where it would end — which the Russians had begun in the spring.

By the time of the 1950 congressional elections the United States was at war in Korea while here at home the country was being split apart on the Communist issue raised by Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

And, on top of that, just a few days before the election a couple of assassins tried to kill Truman.

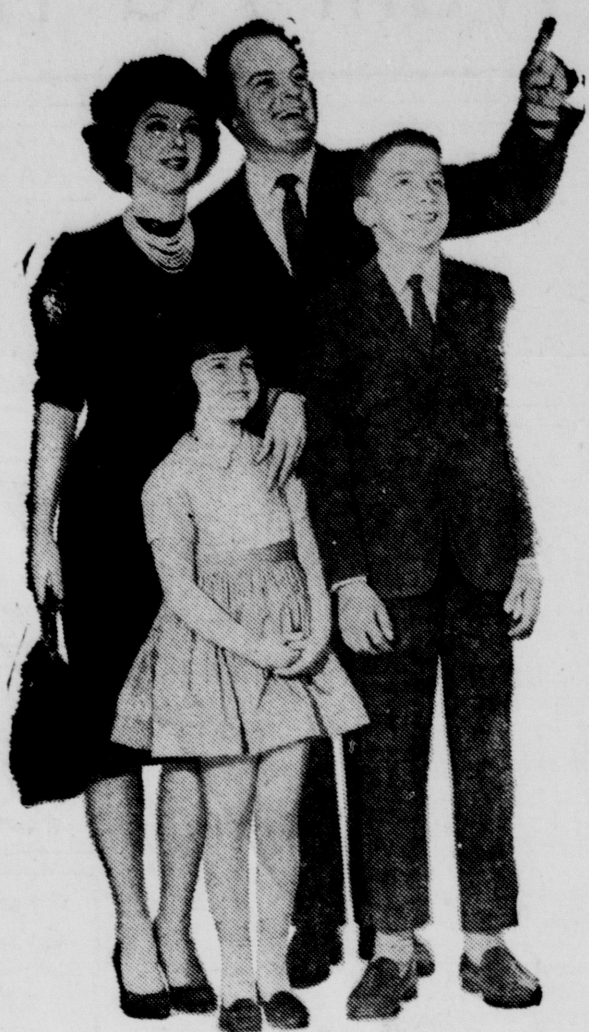

The Korean War was still going on its sickening way, like a grisly ghost in the background, by the time of the 1952 presidential race. Republicans made it a central issue and Dwight D. Eisenhower promised, if he beat Adlai Stevenson, to go to Korea. He won and went.

There was no foreign crisis during the 1954 congressional campaign—the Korean War was over then—but there was an extraordinary distraction, with a deep emotional undercurrent, here at home.

The censure proceedings against McCarthy were being held and, after the elections, resulted in his condemnation by the Senate.

But there was a shocking explosion in the midst of the 1956 presidential contest between Eisenhower and Stevenson. In fact, most of it happened just a few days before the election.
